

The Colours Around Us

According to a recent study, the colours we like say more about us than we think. It seems that different colours go with different personalities. 1 -----.

Look inside your wardrobe and around your house. 2 -----. May be you aren't confident enough to use bright colours. But if you introduce a few brighter colours into your life, you will definitely see a difference. 3 -----.

On the other hand if you prefer very bright colours, you may be too sure of yourself! 4 -----
-That's what you feel like about them. It can be tiring, though, always being the centre of attention. Why not try wearing more neutral colours now and again? You will feel calmer and more relaxed. 5 -----.

Finally, if you want people to take you more seriously at work, go for black and white. 6 ---
--Forget strips and checks, though – the plainer the look, the better.

So as you can see, colours are a very important part of our lives.

Comprehension

A- Read the article and write the main idea (1pt)

.....
.....

B- Read the article again and decide which sentence, a or b, goes in each gap. (3pts)

- 1 a- What's more, the colours we see around us affect the way we feel.
b- So colours aren't really an important part of life at all.
- 2 a- if your clothes and furniture are all grey and beige, then you are a shy and sensitive Person.
b- Do you know what's your best friend's favourite colour is?
- 3 a- You'll probably have less confidence than before.
b- You'll be amazed at how confident you feel.
- 4 a- The colour red often means danger, so avoid it if it's possible.
b- The brightest colours like red, orange and yellow get people's attention.
- 5 a- Your home will have a more relaxing atmosphere too if you avoid very bright colours and patterns
b- In this way, you'll find what colour suits you best.

